

My First Korean Things Around Me At Home Picture Book With English Translations

I've been living in Korea for about a year now, and I've slowly been learning more and more about the culture. One of the things that I've found most interesting is the Korean language. It's so different from English, and it's been a challenge to learn. But I'm slowly getting better, and I'm starting to be able to understand more and more. One of the best ways that I've found to learn Korean is to surround myself with the language. I've started watching Korean dramas, listening to Korean music, and reading Korean books. I've also started to pay more attention to the Korean things around me.

I recently took a picture of some of the Korean things around me at home. I thought it would be a fun way to share some of the things that I've learned about Korean culture. I've also included English translations for each of the items in the picture.

- 감자 (gamja): potato
- 당근 (danggeun): carrot
- 양파 (yangpa): onion
- 마늘 (maneul): garlic
- 고추 (gochu): pepper
- 생강 (saenggang): ginger
- 김 (gim): seaweed
- 두부 (dubu): tofu

- 고추장 (gochujang): red pepper paste
- 된장 (doenjang): soybean paste
- 간장 (ganjang): soy sauce
- 식초 (sikcho): vinegar
- 설탕 (seoltang): sugar
- 소금 (sogeum): salt
- 후추 (huchu): pepper
- 커피 (keopi): coffee
- 차 (cha): tea
- 생수 (saengsu): water
- 우유 (uyu): milk
- 주스 (juseu): juice
- 맥주 (maekju): beer
- 소주 (soju): Korean rice wine
- 막걸리 (makgeolli): Korean rice wine

I hope you enjoyed this little tour of my Korean things at home. I'm still learning about Korean culture, but I'm excited to continue to learn more. I know that I'll continue to find new and interesting things to share with you all.
